Nation-Wide Embargo Placed On All Railroad Freight Shipments

TRUMAN WILL ASK CONGRESS
TO GET GOINGPRESIDENT PLANS
STRONG MESSAGE TO LAWMAKERS

BY J. W. DAVIS
Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—President Truman said today he is going to send the new Congress the strongest message he can — not just about labor but everything in the country — and he wants co-operation to get something done.

Mr. Truman made the statement to a news conference which packed his office to the walls. Many had come in the vain hope he would talk about John L. Lewis and the coal strike.

Ambassador Named
Right at the outset, the president announced the nomination of O. Max Gardner to be ambassador to Great Britain, said state department headquarters will remain where they are despite a shift of personnel — and then choked off questions on coal.

There will be no comment or statement on the coal situation, at this time pending in the courts, he said, adding that now he was ready for questioning.

This, removing as it did the one big question of the day, brought laughter in which the president joined.

A reporter tried anyway. He asked whether the president was giving any consideration, outside the court's realm, to get coal mined by strip mining or otherwise. Again came the reply, there will be no comment on coal at this time.

He was asked whether he was going to preclude questions on general labor matters outside the court, such as the statement by Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) that the president plans to "present to Congress the strongest message he knew how to prepare."

Budget Uncertain
Well, that's true, said Mr. Truman, but it does not necessarily refer only to labor but everything in the country. He said he would make his annual message as strong as he can and he wants co-operation to get something done. Mr. Truman also told his news conference:

1. He does not think it necessary to have a congressional investigation of U. S. military government abroad. The Senate War Investigating Committee has decided against investigating in Germany. Acting strictly on a Democratic majority vote. Republican members have protested, saying it looks as though an effort is being made to hide something.

2. He does not know what amount he will propose to Congress for the federal budget for the next fiscal year. A reporter asked if it will be between $32,000,000,000 and $37,000,000,000 and Mr. Truman said the budget is in course of preparation and no one can discuss it intelligently until it is finished. The present budget is around $41,500,000,000.

3. He is willing to turn over the Army's presidio at San Francisco, subject to congressional approval, to the United Nations if the U. N. wants it as a headquarters.

BYRD'S EXPEDITION HEADS SOUTH—These are the approximate courses being taken by the three main groups of the Navy's Antarctic expedition headed by Rear Adm. Richard Byrd. The Atlantic Fleet Task Force, augmented by units of the Pacific Fleet, will enter the Antarctic as soon as ice conditions permit, to carry out an extensive training and development program.

HOUSING CHIEF
READY TO QUITWyatt To Resign; Can't Get Powers He Wanted
From President

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—An official in close touch with the White House said tonight that Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt intends to resign within the next 48 hours as a result of failure to get powers he had demanded from President Truman.

Wyatt visited the president this afternoon for the second time this week seeking an answer to his proposals. After the conference no official statement was forthcoming from the White House and Wyatt declined to say whether or not he intended to resign.

The official who reported the result of the conference said there was no chance of further negotiations.

This official, who asked that he be not identified by name, said Wyatt had refused to accept a compromise in his demands for fuller authority to push the housing program.

The White House earlier, however, had indicated that the issue was not settled finally. This raised some speculation that a change of mind might head off a Wyatt resignation.

"The matter still is being worked on," Charles G. Ross, White House press secretary, told newsmen after the meeting between Wyatt and the president.

He said there would be "no statement from the president or from Mr. Wyatt."

Santa Claus Aides
In Detroit Jollier;
They Got Pay Raise

Detroit, Dec. 3 (AP)—Santa Claus aides in the Detroit area are a bit jollier than even union standards require tonight.

They've stopped worrying about such earthly things as the price of food and the cost of living—they got their raise.

The CIO Santa Claus Union, Local 1052, announced tonight a 20 cent an hour raise is in store for its members, bringing total earnings to $1.20 an hour. The raises came through revised contracts between stores and the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees (CIO), parent organization of the Santa Claus Union.

President Doesn't
Tend His Furnaces

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—The White House has three furnaces, President Truman said today, but he doesn't know whether two of them burn coal.

When the question came up at the president's news conference, Mr. Truman said he knew one of the heating plants used oil, but he didn't know about the two others. As a matter of fact, he added, he doesn't know where the furnaces are.

Mass Strike Ties
Up Oakland, Calif.

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP)—Organized labor, which paralyzed the East Bay's transportation and industry in a 1,000,000 population area by means of a "protest" walkout today, projected an even bigger walkout tomorrow and Oakland's mayor announced he would proclaim a state of emergency.

Mayor Herbert L. Beach, terming the walkout a "physical assault" on the rights of the populace, said a special meeting of the city council tomorrow would be asked in order to give the proclamation legal force and that he expected "order will be restored in our streets."

ARMY MORALS
CHARGES AILEDTales Of U. S. Forces In Germany Called Gossip
And Hearsay

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—Charges of wild immorality and other excesses by American forces in occupied Germany were made public tonight, and the war department swiftly replied "hearsay" and "gossip."

President Truman, in response to questions at a news conference, took the position that a congressional investigation of the military government in Germany is unnecessary.

Four Republican members of the Senate War Investigating Committee formally ripped the "confidential" tag off a secret report made by committee member George W. Meader after a four-week flying tour of the American occupation area.

Meader's report listed numerous allegations of immoral conduct by some of the American occupation troops, heavy venereal infections, misconduct by officers, and objectionable action by displaced persons.

Even before the report appeared in print Committee Chairman Kilgore (D-WVa) released what amounted to a report on the report, based on an investigation of the investigation.

Made by Brig. Gen. Elliott D. Cooke of the Army inspector's general office, it summarized an inquiry into testimony given by Col. Francis P. Miller, who was one of the key witnesses before the Senate committee sometime ago, before it dropped plans for a further inquiry into the subject.

THIEVES GET ARSENAL
Detroit, Dec. 3 (AP)—Police today sought thieves who obtained a small-sized arsenal in a hardware store robbery. The loot included: 23 guns, including 21 shotguns, a deer rifle and a revolver; 24 hunting knives; 2,000 rounds of ammunition.

PARCEL POST
WEIGHTS CUT
TO 5 POUNDSDRASTIC MEASURE
TAKEN TO SAVE
SCARCE FUEL

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—A nation-wide embargo on railroad freight shipments, except for vital needs, was proclaimed today; parcel post packages were limited to five pounds at the height of the Christmas mailing season, and passenger mileage on coal burning trains was slashed another 25 per cent.

These drastic measures were taken to conserve fuel in view of the coal strike.

The freight embargo and curbs on parcel post become effective at 12:01 a. m., Friday. The cut in railroad mileage takes effect at 11:59 p. m. Sunday and brings the mileage down to 50 per cent of the pre-strike level. A 25 per cent reduction already is in effect.

Effective time in each instance is local standard time.

Announcing the freight embargo, the interstate commerce commission declared that rail service can be prolonged "only by the most careful husbanding" of remaining coal stocks.

Express Included
The general ban applies to express as well as freight shipments.

The Office of Defense Transportation, in announcing the passenger mileage cut, said in a statement that it "acted upon reports indicating that the railroads have on hand a 27-day supply of coal based upon the present rate of consumption."

In still another step resulting from the coal strike, the Association of America Railroads clamped an embargo on rail movement of freight slated for ocean export, except food and fuel. It is effective at midnight tonight.

In declaring the general ban on freight, the ICC said in a statement that it is "of the opinion that an emergency requiring immediate action exists in all sections of the country."

Certain essential articles will be exempt from the general order. In addition, permits will be issued for local movement of some others. The ICC named Warren C. Kendall as its general permit agent with full authority over issuing permits. Kendall is chairman of the car service division of the railroad association.

Specifically exempt commodities include, among others, food, feed, livestock and live poultry.

ICKES BLASTS
JOHN L. LEWISUnion Chief Getting Too
Big For His Breeches,
House Group Told

BY FRANCIS M. LEMAY
Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—The "curmudgeon", Harold L. Ickes, let go with both barrels at John L. Lewis today, calling him "our own domestic Hitler" and simultaneously accused the government of playing "drop the handkerchief" instead of bringing the mine union chief to book.

The former interior secretary leveled his fire also at John R. Steelman, presidential adviser, whom he termed "a long time friend of John L. Lewis."

Ickes gave his views before the house surplus property committee, whose chairman, Rep. Slaughter (D-Mo), immediately announced he would summon Steelman.

Marching before the committee which is studying future use of the Big and Little Inch pipelines, Ickes declared:

"Today we are not at war with Hitler but we are in a desperate fight to keep our economy with its nose above water, to protect the interest and advance the welfare of our people and repel the assault of our own domestic Hitler, a ruthless dictator who goes by the name of John L. Lewis."

Lewis, he said, "is getting too big for his breeches."

Then turning his guns on government officials, Ickes said they had muffed an opportunity to trim Lewis down to a size to fit his pants.

Industries Limp As Coal Piles Dwindle;
More Schools Close

(By The Associated Press)

The icy winds of winter swirled across diminishing coal piles today as Michigan lost more ground in the battle against the national fuel crisis.

Two more schools closed their doors indefinitely when their coal supplies proved inadequate to stave off freezing temperatures, bringing to 16 the number that are shuttered.

At least 34 others were fighting a losing struggle and authorities said they probably will close before the week's end.

The number of pupils thus affected may top the 20,000 mark.

Industry also began to limp beneath the burden.

In Coldwater, all factories went on a three-day week, affecting several hundred employees.

GARDNER NAMED
AS AMBASSADORFormer North Carolina
Governor Fills Post
Vacated in London

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—O. Max Gardner, who made his first trip to England on a cattle boat "as chambermaid to 394 Montana steers," is going back again—this time as United States ambassador.

President Truman today appointed the former governor of North Carolina to the vacant London Post. He said a successor had not yet been named for the office. Gardner is leaving as undersecretary of the treasury.

Gardner's initial visit to England was in 1905, he recalled. He was captain of the university of North Carolina football team and the team worked its way across on the cattleboat.

"They wanted strong backs and weak minds," he said. "The trip took 18 days."

The London Post has been vacant since W. Averell Harriman left it to become secretary of commerce.

In politics for almost 40 years, the 64-year-old Gardner was born at Shelby, N. C., the youngest of a family of 12 children.

While his father lost every thing he had during the war, his orphan Max Gardner is reported to have made more than a million dollars, chiefly in the textile business.

Florida Carnival
Man On Trial For Killing At Ionia

Ionia, Mich., Dec. 3 (AP)—Chloris (Sonny) Howard, 35-year-old Tampa, Fla., carnival concessionaire, went on trial on a first degree murder charge here today as an outgrowth of a fatal fight on the Ionia Free Fair midway Aug. 12.

Howard, who has been free under $6,000 bond, is accused in the death of Clara Hodge, 23, of near-by Portland, Mich.

A jury panel chosen in record time of 20 minutes heard first witnesses testify that Howard struck the first blow after an argument over a woman's war service. Both Howard and Hodge fought in the Battle of the Bulge.

A coroner's report said Hodge died of a head injury.

Lansing Landlords
Want Rent Control
Offices Abolished

Lansing, Dec. 3 (AP)—Protesting citizens asked the Lansing city council today to help them abolish the Lansing rent control office, while in Flint the city council voted to boost rents 10 and 15 per cent under its unique "home rule" rent ordinance.

Approximately 500 landlords in the Lansing area petitioned the council to go on record against the area office and set up "some local rent control plan". The committee has sought the removal of Sig Pollack, area rent control director, and members of his staff.

Amending its own rent ordinance by a six to three vote, the Flint council ordered that effective Dec. 18 owners of dwellings who furnish heat may boost their rents 15 per cent, and those whose tenants provide their own heat may have an increase of 10 per cent.

Detroit Teachers
Win Back Salaries
Withheld In 1932

Lansing, Dec. 3 (AP)—Eight hundred Detroit school teachers, carrying their fight to the state supreme court, won today $124,019 in back salaries which were withheld from them in an economy drive in 1932.

Informed sources said that actually the decision would affect some 7,000 teachers to the extent of $1,500,000 in back pay.

The teachers were paid 20.83 per cent of their overdue salaries in 1937.

The Detroit board of education, faced with mounting tax delinquencies in the depression year of 1932, had required its employees with full-year contracts to work for half-pay and those who worked on a 10-months basis to give up 41 and two-thirds of their contract salaries.

MINER LEADER
DEFIANT; STIFF
PENALTY SURESENTENCE PUT OFF
UNTIL TODAY BY
U. S. JUDGE

BY MAX HALL

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—John L. Lewis today was found guilty of criminal contempt of court—with a possible heavy sentence—but the coal strike went on and the government took drastic emergency action to save fuel.

Lewis responded to the guilty verdict by rising in the federal courtroom and making a bitterly defiant speech. He accused the judge of depriving the coal miners of their constitutional rights. He said he would "firmly stand" on his position.

After this dramatic scene the judge, T. Alan Goldsborough, sat pondering for four minutes then put off sentencing Lewis until tomorrow morning.

Heavy Fines Indicated
The language of his conclusions, that Lewis and his union "willfully, wrongfully, and deliberately" disobeyed a court order, suggested the possibility of heavy penalties—perhaps in the nature of drastic daily fines. Judge Goldsborough has the power to impose an unlimited fine or jail sentence if he wishes.

President Truman, commanding the government's battle with Lewis, met reporters but declined to comment on the crisis. He said he was leaving the situation in the hands of the court.

Federal Judge Goldsborough pronounced his verdict by agreeing to the conclusions proposed to him by the U. S. justice department.

Those conclusions, made public two hours later, showed the judge had found both Lewis and his union—the United Mine Workers, AFL—guilty of "civil contempt" and "criminal contempt."

Obstruction Charged
The document said Lewis and the union had "unlawfully coerced, instigated, induced, and encouraged" the miners to interfere with the operation of the government-owned coal mines "by strike, slow-down, walkout, cessation of work, or otherwise."

This language suggested that the government next may prosecute Lewis as an alleged violator of the War Labor Disputes Act (Smith-Connally Act). This law forbids anyone to encourage a strike against the government.

The document also said Lewis and the union "obstructed" the United States in its exercise of sovereign functions.

Goldsborough ruled Lewis and the union in contempt because they did not obey his restraining order of Nov. 12. That order, if obeyed, would have headed off the bituminous coal walkout which occurred at midnight Nov. 20. Lewis had given notice he was breaking off his contract with the government, and the judge's action of Nov. 18 ordered him not to let this notice stay in effect.

TOWN CLERK PLAYS SANTA

Indian Mission Orphans Have Friend In
Bob Hill

Asselin—The Chippewa kids at St. Joseph's Indian mission wrote their letters to Santa Thursday.

The man in the red suit never has made it to the lonely little mission school in the snow belt along Lake Superior. But thanks to 79-year-old Bob Hill, there hasn't been an empty Christmas stocking at St. Joseph's in 55 years.

Back in 1890, Hill decided he'd like to do something for the Indian youngsters.

Contributions
The diocese of Sault Ste. Marie didn't have much money in those days," he said. "The little tykes were lucky if they got enough to eat and keep them warm."

So Hill went to work. He made the rounds of his native Houghton and Hancock, his twin city, collecting clothes, toys, candy, nuts and fruit. He put the bite on merchants for contributions and on friends for help in packaging and labeling the gifts.

Then he and a group of companions set out, braving blizzards along the icy shores of Lake Superior and the windswept wastes of the Keweenaw peninsula.

Year after year Hill kept up his visits. Five of his own eight children died in infancy and he lavished on the Chippewas the toys he didn't need under his own Christmas tree.

A few years ago the Knights of Columbus took over most of the work of gathering the gifts. But Hill made the trip to St. Joseph's every year to play Santa Claus.

Last year illness confined Hill to his home and he missed making the rounds for the first time. But friends saw that the tradition was carried on.

The white haired town clerk feels better this year, but he's still afraid he won't be able to sub for St. Nick. If he isn't there'll be a suitable replacement in retort John Rice, Houghton newspaperman.

"Those kids are the most important thing I have left in life," Hill said. "And I feel like crying when I think about how much I used to do and how little I can do now."

Which is why, when Johnny Brodewitz decides he wants a baseball bat for Christmas he doesn't write to Santa Claus.

He addresses his letter to "Santa Bob."

Chinese Government Troops Prepare To Take Over Dairen

Peiping, Dec. 3. (AP)—Reports, prevalent for weeks, that Chinese government troops would take over control of Russian occupied Dairen, the great port of southern Manchuria, drew a statement today from government military authorities that the transfer would be made soon.

The Chinese, under Gen. Tu Li-ming, have been at Pulantien, 45 miles north of Dairen, since Nov. 1. They halted there in a drive to clear the Chinese Communists from the Liaoting peninsula while negotiations apparently proceeded with the Russians over Dairen.

Soviet troops have occupied Dairen since the Japanese surrender. The Sino-Russian treaty of 1945 designated it a free port.

Government sources said a Chinese Communist offensive towards Changchun, Manchurian capital more than 300 miles north of Dairen, had reached a point 27 miles east of the city.

There was fighting also in the Tungshwa area east of Mukden and in Jehol province east of Chingchi.

Million Evergreens Cut For Christmas In Michigan Woods

Lansing, Dec. 3. (AP)—A normal sale of from 1,350,000 to 1,500,000 Christmas trees and from 1,500 to 2,000 tons of evergreen boughs is expected in Michigan this year, the State Department of Agriculture reported today.

The department estimated that about 1,000,000 of the trees would be cut in the state and the remainder brought in from other states and Canada.

Violations of Christmas tree laws requiring bills of sale forms, have increased this year, the department said, with 58 convictions to date.

Wife's Death Leap Kills Mail Carrier

New York, Dec. 3. (AP)—A woman who plunged to her death from a 15-story apartment building roof struck and fatally injured a passing mail carrier today.

The woman, Mrs. Natalie J. Biro, 30, had been ill recently, police were advised by her husband, Louis B. Biro.

The postman, Alexander Cook, 41, died in a hospital an hour after being struck.

Press Gets Nowhere In Deal For Radio Station In Escanaba

Washington, Dec. 3. (AP)—Efforts of the Escanaba (Mich.) Daily Press to expedite communications commission action on its proposed acquisition of radio station WDBC there have been unavailing, George Lindenthal, a representative of the newspaper, said today.

The Daily Mining Journal at Marquette now owns the station, but agreed last April to sell it to the Escanaba paper.

The latter is seeking the commission's approval for the transfer of ownership.

The commission ordered on Nov. 21 that a hearing be held on the application. No date for the hearing has been set and a com-fuel and oils, medical and related supplies, funeral supplies, newspapers and magazines.

Package Size Restricted
The parcel post limitation, besides trimming allowable weight, restricts measurements to 18 inches in length and 60 inches in length and girth combined. Rules now allow 100 inches length and girth combined and a limit of 70 pounds per package.

Four classes of goods are exempted entirely from the limitation. They are live day-old poultry; seeds, plants and other nursery stock; eggs, butter and other perishable foods, and medicines, drugs, surgical instruments and surgical dressing.

The ruling puts a complete ban on international parcel post. However, it does not apply in any respect to packages destined for armed forces overseas.

The railroad association's embargo on overseas export freight applies also to freight intended for storage in port areas. Exemptions will be governed by permits from the Office of Defense Transportation.

An association official said the order covers:

"All carload and less than carload lots of freight consigned or re-consigned to any U. S. port when billed or intended for export by water, including export freight intended for storage in port areas."

MORE THOUSANDS IDLE
Pittsburgh, Dec. 3. (AP)—A nation already strike-groggy suffered another blow from the 13-day-soft coal stoppage tonight as a fuel embargo on railroad freight shipments threatened to send unemployment skyrocketing to new levels.

The embargo, effective at 12:01 a. m. Friday, would add hundreds of thousands to the 165,000 workers already idled in coal-dependent industries.

Ford Motor Co. said its manufacturing operations will stop concurrently with the freight embargo and predicted a complete shutdown in a few days, throwing 85,000 Ford employees out of work.

General Motors, with 200,000 workers, said finally, "we can't operate if we can't ship the materials and the finished products." Westinghouse Electric Corp. declared an embargo would be "certain to materially cripple our operations." Westinghouse employs 76,000.

With the steel industry rapidly nearing the bottom of its fuel stockpiles but for the most part still spreading available work among as many men as possible, related industries were hopeful that the walkout would end before they run out of material.

A spokesman for the Tri-State Industrial Association said the fabricating industries in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia wouldn't begin to really feel the result of the bituminous shut down for another ten days or two weeks.

The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown, Ohio, areas, with 1,400 men furloughed and 9,000 on part time, has closed all except 36 of its 129 open hearths and eight of its 24 blast furnaces. Since the walkout started 14 days ago, U. S. Steel's No. 1 subsidiary has lost 126,762 tons of ingot; 106,665 tons of pig iron and 1,411 tons of ferro manganese.

Britain And U. S.
Turn Down Rupture
With Franco Spain

BY FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
Lake Success, N. Y., Dec. 3. (AP)—The United States and Great Britain turned thumbs down tonight on direct coercive United Nations measures against Franco Spain, splitting sharply with France and the Russian group which demanded a complete and instant rupture of relations by all the U. N. states with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

The United States contended that such stringent action conceivably could lead the world into another war.

The political committee of the U. N. assembly heard the Spanish question debated at length in two sessions lasting more than six hours all told and then adjourned until tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. C. S. T. with more speakers on the list.

There are 35,000 weather stations throughout the world.

MINER LEADER DEFIANT; STIFF PENALTY SURE

Today's historic verdict came on the 13th day of that walkout. More and more of the nation's industry felt the pinch as coal piles shrank. And the outlook for getting the men back to work was as gloomy as ever.

Top Official Resigns
Edward R. Burke, who wanted the private coal operators to sit down and bargain with Lewis, resigned as president of the Southern Coal Producers' Association.

He quit after a powerful section of his board of directors denounced his proposal for talks with Lewis.

Goldsborough asked the attorneys on both sides—for the government and Lewis—to give their views tomorrow (9 a. m. CST) on what penalties he should impose.

He said this was an "unusual" request but certainly not an "improper" one.

The restraining order will expire Saturday. Government lawyers have asked for an injunction, and this request is still pending. A restraining order and an injunction have the same general effect, but a restraining order can be issued without a hearing, a stop-gap to preserve the status quo until a court can determine whether to issue an injunction.

Uses Big Words
Lewis today stood before the judge and proclaimed "I cannot, by action or inaction, acquiesce in what must be described as the ugly recrudescence of government by injunction."

In his deep, rolling, deliberate voice, he said the Norris-LaGuardia Act of 1932 prevents labor injunctions "in plain language which any intelligent citizen can understand." (Goldsborough has held that the act doesn't apply in this case because the government itself sought the restraining order, and not a private employer.)

She said Goldsborough granted the restraining order "without notice and without a hearing."

He said that even above the Norris-LaGuardia Act, the Constitution guarantees to the miners freedom of speech, press, assembly and "freedom from involuntary servitude." His voice rose to a roar on those four words. Then he said:

"Your injunction, sir, I respectfully submit, deprives the miners of these constitutional rights."

Policy Of AFL Cited
Lewis read from a report adopted by the 1919 convention of the AFL, to the effect that AFL members would treat all injunctive decrees that invaded their personal liberties as unwarranted and illegal, "and accept whatever consequences may follow."

Lewis said that was still the AFL's policy. He said he spoke not only as president of the mine union but also as vice-president of the AFL.

He told the judge "The considerations which prompted our original course of action with respect to this coercive and all-embracing restraining order" have not changed. In fact he said recent events "have greatly and acutely enhanced our initial conviction."

He declared the mine workers are "God-fearing, law-abiding American citizens." They have "not ceased work in defiance of their government," he said. "On the contrary they have asserted their rights as free men to protest the unjust and arbitrary acts to which they have been subjected by individuals employed by the government." Lewis said he was not disposed to adopt a course that would amount to a "betrayal" of their rights.

Son, 7, Suffocates As Family Escapes From Burning Home

Muskegon, Mich., Dec. 3. (AP)—A seven-year-old boy suffocated early today as he and five other members of his family fled from their blazing home in Lakeland township, Muskegon county.

The body of Lawrence McCleary was found in the charred ruins of the one-story home, only a few feet from where his bed had stood.

George McCleary, 32, father of the family, and another son, William, three, were burned severely and were taken to Hackley hospital.

The mother, Mrs. Helen McCleary, 27, and her son, Anthony, six, were treated for smoke and George Jr., five, for slight burns.

Mrs. McCleary discovered the fire in the kitchen shortly after 4 a. m. and roused her husband. He tossed Anthony out a window and led the rest of the survivors to safety.

When the parents got outside they discovered that Lawrence, who had been awakened with the other children, had not come out. They tried to get back into the house to rescue him, but flames drove them back.

Deer Season Sets Record In Kill Of Hunters And Bucks

Lansing, Dec. 3. (AP)—The 1946 deer hunting season set a double record this year—a new high in both the number of hunters and deer killed, the state conservation department reported today.

Following the pre-season predictions closely, the 300,000 hunters participating in the season took approximately 100,000 deer, the department said. The Upper Peninsula counties apparently drew more of the record increase in hunters than those below the Straits, the department said.

Well-known to Escanaba youngsters because of his work at Ludington Park and at city skating rinks, Smith has worked for the city since the summer of 1918. His retirement is caused by ill health.

ters. He added he had no preference.

Mr. Truman apparently misunderstood a question about naming a new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission. He said he would fill it when he finds a man for the job. Later, the White House announced the appointment of Charles Denny, who has been acting chairman.

Freight Ban May Hold Up Building At Michigan State

East Lansing, Dec. 3. (AP)—Increased enrollment at Michigan State College may be affected by the proposed railroad embargo caused by the coal strike, President John A. Hannah declared today.

Hannah said contractors are working overtime to complete one men's and one women's dormitory on the campus and that construction speed depends upon shipment of building materials. The construction now proceeds on hand-to-mouth basis for manufacturer to builder, Hannah said.

E. E. Kinney, superintendent of buildings and maintenance at the college, said the institution had enough reserve coal to last until Jan. 13. The college uses about 130 tons of coal per day, Kinney said, and now has on hand about 4,500 tons.

Frank Smith, Park Employee, Retires

Frank Smith, 65, of 229½ Stephens avenue, will retire Jan. 1 as a foreman in the Escanaba city parks department, the fifth city employee to retire since the city came under the new state pension system.

Well-known to Escanaba youngsters because of his work at Ludington Park and at city skating rinks, Smith has worked for the city since the summer of 1918. His retirement is caused by ill health.

Sault High School Athletic Field To Install Lighting

Sault Ste. Marie — A $15,000 lighting plant for the Sault High Athletic field has been ordered by a committee of Sault alumni, it was announced Saturday by Gordon Malcolm, chairman of the committee.

The order was placed through the Michigan Northern Power Company here and it is hoped that the installation will be complete to make the equipment and field available for night games during the summer season of softball and the fall season of football.

The plant will be installed by the Westinghouse Corporation. Westinghouse engineers have inspected the field and made the following recommendations which were accepted by the alumni committee, and school officials.

The football field will have a Class A installation, with eight poles and 80 lights of 1,500 watts each. The poles will be of the permanent type with underground wiring.

Lake Shore Div. Office Of C&NW Is 40 Years Old

Green Bay, Wis.—Just 40 years ago Monday, the Lake Shore division of the North Western road started functioning in the division offices on the second floor of the passenger depot here.

Officially, the division was organized Dec. 1, 1906, following completion of the Manitowoc cut-off, as the line from here to Manitowoc was known. However, Dec. 2 fell on Sunday, and the actual moving in took place on that day.

C. E. Andrews was the first superintendent. He later was transferred to Escanaba, and was succeeded by A. N. LaCombe, now retired, who had been agent here when the division was formed. LaCombe remained as superintendent until the Lake Shore was merged with the Northern Wisconsin division in 1925, when John S. Rice took over the post.

Today, the enlarged Lake Shore division administers 713 miles of line out of the Green Bay office, from Scott Lake, Mich., on the north to Janesville and Milwaukee on the south, and from Lake Michigan west to Eland. It is the third largest division on the system in point of mileage, exceeded only by the Iowa division and the Madison division.

Charles F. Moeser, chief dispatcher, is the only man still on duty here who was involved in the original move. At that time, he was side-wire operator and relief dispatcher, and was transferred here from South Kaukauna, Wallace V. Lenka, now dispatcher at Escanaba, also was one of the original workers on the new division at Green Bay.

More children are crippled by infantile paralysis than by all other diseases and accidents combined.

The U. S. Census Bureau estimates there are about 2,500,000 more American families now than in 1940.

Four Horses Are Burned In Stable

Iron Mountain—Four valuable riding horses and complete equipment, including several English saddles, were destroyed when the barn in which they were housed, owned jointly—with all contents—by F. A. Flodin, president of the Lake Shore Engineering company and Martin D. Thomas of the Braumart Theater company, was leveled by fire thought to have started shortly before 2 Sunday afternoon at Spread Eagle, Wis.

An over-heated oil unit is believed to be the cause of the blaze. About 24 chickens in the building were also destroyed.

Persons residing near the stable—situated on an 80-acre tract—purchased some time ago, by the two Iron Mountain men—saw smoke rising from the building at about 2 o'clock, and hurried to the scene. When they opened the doors smoke and flames drove them back.

Firemen were summoned from Florence, Wis., but the flames had already gained rapid headway, and the building was quickly burned to the ground. The structure comprised, besides the stables a tack-room, in which riding equipment was stored; a pump-room and a section used as a chicken-coop. Nothing was saved.

Arthur A. Juttner Dies In Menominee

Menominee, Mich.—Arthur Albert Juttner of 633 Parmenter street who held several city and county offices, including an eight-year term as Menominee postmaster, died in St. Joseph's hospital at 8:10 a. m. He was born in Menominee on December 2, 1865 the son of Joseph and Wilhelmina Juttner, both natives of Germany. His birthplace was the house in which Gottfried Rotter now has a tailor shop and which was then located in the rear of the old National hotel, which stood on Sheridan road at First street. The house was later moved to Sheridan road and then to its present location on Second street.

OUR $150,000,000 EXPANSION AND IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM MEANS JOBS FOR THOUSANDS

A lot of talk it is. Yet that is the number of telephone calls Michigan Bell handled in just one year . . . 1945. Still more are going through this year, for people are talking more often and longer every day. And Michigan Bell is installing telephones at the record-breaking rate of 400,000 a year.

Because of this, we must be prepared to handle a steadily increasing flow of telephone traffic in the years ahead. The needed telephone facilities are being provided through our five-year expansion and improvement program, started right after V-J Day. That program will cost $150,000,000.

Where will the money come from? It will come largely from the sale of additional Bell System securities to hundreds of thousands of thrifty folks who are willing to invest their savings in the telephone business. But investors will purchase those securities only if they are assured a fair return on their investment. Telephone rates must be sufficient to provide earnings that will produce that fair return.

We, like you, are facing a higher "cost of living." Should it go still higher, rate increases may become necessary to provide adequate earnings. In any event, Michigan Bell wants rates no higher . . . and no lower . . . than necessary to operate this business efficiently and pay good wages, assure a fair return to investors, and give telephone users better service and more service for their money.

First Round for Petrillo

The ruling by Federal Judge Walter LaBuy in Chicago that the Lea Act designed to eliminate some of the union racketeering in radio broadcasting is unconstitutional poses a new problem for legislative control of the high-handed Petrillo, boss of the musicians union.

The issue, of course, will be carried to the supreme court where the final judicial determination will be made. If the supreme court sustains the ruling of the district court, it means that congress will have to tackle the problem anew. Despite the setback caused by the ruling of the district judge, there is encouragement in that portion of Judge LaBuy's decision which observed that objectives of the act are not beyond the reach of federal legislative control.

The issue involved is whether radio broadcasters are going to be forced to hire more employees than they actually need and thus pay tribute to Petrillo's union. The intent of congress in passing the Lea act definitely was contrary to that viewpoint.

Petrillo has won the first round but it's the final decision that really counts. If the supreme court fails to uphold the Lea Act, it is almost certain that congress will pass new legislation to achieve the same objective.

Investment Justified

When the Escanaba city council embarked on an industrial development program in cooperation with the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce about three years ago, it established a new precedent in municipal administration.

City funds were utilized to acquire and repair factory buildings to be either leased or sold to new industries. The expenditure of public funds for this purpose was considerable, but without this cooperation the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce would have been unable, because of the lack of money, to make its outstanding record in industrial expansion.

The investment of city funds to encourage expansion of industry will pay good dividends, however. The industrial power load within the Escanaba city limits was about 400 k. w. before the coming of the new industries. This load has doubled in the past three years, and when the Harshfleger company, the glove factories and other new industries get well under way the load will total 1200 k. w.

These new industries also are customers of the city gas and water utilities, and one company, the Solar Furniture, buys the central heating service. In addition, they pay either rent or taxes, and salaries and wages to several hundred employees.

At this rate, it will not take long for the city to get its money back from the investment it has made in Escanaba's industrial expansion program.

Press Opinion Survey

THE Bureau of Governmental Research of Detroit, which recently made its first press opinion survey, reports that Michigan newspaper editors foresee a good state administration after Kim Sigler takes over down in Lansing.

Twenty-seven per cent of the editors predicted the administration would be very good, 43 per cent good, 22 per cent fair, four per cent poor and two per cent very poor.

The newspapermen's opinion of the liquor administration in Michigan, however, was not so favorable. Not any of them regarded the handling of liquor affairs as very good. Twenty-two per cent rated it as good, 43 per cent as fair, 16 per cent as poor, and 19 per cent as very poor.

So, Kim Sigler will assume the chief executive's chair in Lansing with public opinion, as reflected by the newspaper editors' personal views, very much in his favor. He probably will be faced with a knotty financial problem as a result of the passage of the sales tax amendment, but if he overcomes this obstacle he stands to make an impressive showing in state politics. Given the breaks, there is no telling how far the colorful, politically-adept Sigler will go in public life.

Problem In Finances

THE prospect of new state taxes confronts the people of Michigan as a result of the adoption of the sales tax diversion and veterans bonus amendments. A gap of $71,000,000 between the state's revenue and operating costs for the next fiscal year must be closed if the state is going to adopt a balanced budget.

Just how this money is to be raised is a matter that should have been brought before the public at the time the two amendments were placed on the ballots.

Part of the gap, about $20,000,000 of it, will be closed by keeping liquor license revenue and liquor taxes in the state treasury instead of passing that money on to local units of government. Local units, in turn, will profit by their share of the state sales tax. That will still leave about $50,000,000 to be raised in new taxes. Some of this undoubtedly will be accomplished by passing additional state services on to local governments.

The proposed state income tax on one percent on all payrolls will certainly not be a welcome addition to the state tax program, nor will a suggested one cent increase in the state gasoline tax.

Another proposal more favorably considered by the legislative taxation committees would take two or three mills of the local property tax for payment of the state bonus. There is a disposition to show that such action would not increase property taxes because of the 15 mill limitation.

Actually there is no use in kidding ourselves. You just cannot raise $71,000,000 without tax increases somewhere along the line.

Forestry for Farmers

MORE emphasis on the farm woodlot can be expected in the future with the arrival here of Eric Engman, extension forester, who will serve as an adviser to farmers of Delta and Menominee counties. Extension foresters also have been assigned to other counties in the Upper Peninsula.

In addition to better utilization of farm woodlots, the establishment of community forests by schools, cities and civic organizations offers an opportunity to replenish the woodlands that have been stripped of their timber in years past.

According to the Forest Service, community forests perform functions which recommend them for a place in the planning of the postwar economy in a number of different ways. In the category of resource planning they tie in closely with crop land planning, watershed protection, wildlife, waste-land use and soil conservation. They also have a place in social planning. The sustaining power of small woodworking industries is demonstrated in innumerable communities.

In certain nations of the old world, community-owned forest tracts have played an important role in local economies for many centuries. As a nation, we have made progress with national and state forests. It is time for a widespread growth of forests owned by towns and cities.

LEEWAY

(The Bridgeport Post)

Last summer a certain man living on the bend of a super-highway looked up from his gardening as a car that was going just too fast screamed around the curve.

The protesting tires gave the warning that was climaxed by a crash.

The man ran to the road in time to see the car coming to rest on its top, a mass of wreckage. The driver was dead.

As a crowd of onlookers arrived, one boy spoke up: "Huh, I've seen that fellow take the curve even faster than he was going, and make it."

An older man said: "I guess that's why he cut the corner a little too close today."

Perhaps youth and age are reflected in those two comments on a needless tragedy. Youth says, Cut the corner closer, if you made it the last time! Age says, a little leeway is healthy if it's "make it, or else."

Leeway, or clearance, is a mighty good thing when the odds are about even. It's a good philosophy on any of the roads of life. The leeway of savings for an emergency spares may be a financial crash. The clearance of self-control in a tight spot spares many another. And so on.

Too many people young and old plan their whole lives on the theory of just missing the smash that can end everything, and then one time not missing it! "The little more, and how much it is," wrote Browning. "The little less, and what worlds away!"

ANOTHER TRAVEL FIRST

(Iron Mountain News)

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad announces, effective "some time in January," that its passengers may reserve train space by telephone and pay for it on the train, either with cash or by use of credit cards.

Under the projected credit card plan, which will be adopted by the Pere Marquette and the Nickel Plate lines as well as the C.&O., any "financially responsible individual anywhere in the United States" may apply for an receive credit without posting a credit balance. It will no longer be necessary for a person who has made reservations by telephone to go to a ticket window. It will no longer be necessary to pick up tickets 12 or 24 hours in advance. Once a reservation is confirmed by phone, the prospective passenger has no more worries until train time.

Robert R. Young, the imaginative chairman of the C.&O., had his way about coast-to-coast sleeping-car service, and his plan, nurtured during the war, helped to break the black market in Pullman reservations. His latest plan to promote the railroad industry "in the interest of the public" will probably be successful.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Q. To settle a dispute, please tell us how the bridge expert, Ely Culbertson, pronounced his first name.—D. M.

A. In a recent letter, Mr. Culbertson tells me that he pronounces Ely in the British manner, thus: EE-lee.

Q. My family name is Leech. What nationality is it, and does it have a meaning?—A. L. L.

A. Leech is the modern spelling of the Anglo-Saxon lece, "one who heals; a physician." Until comparatively recent years, the physician relied upon blood-letting in treating most ailments. The favorite method was by the use of the blood-sucking worm, Hirudo medicinalis, commonly called "leech." Whether the leech was named after the physician or

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—One thing must be said for Russian strategy in the United Nations poker game—it is always unexpected. When Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov agreed to accept the principle of international inspection to insure disarmament and control of atomic energy, he dropped a bombshell that took everyone by surprise.

The Molotov proposal is now being subjected to the closest study by the experts in all delegations to determine whether it means what it actually seems to mean. Suspicion is so deep and the stakes are so great that nothing is taken for granted.

The experts who know Russia had said that the Soviets would never accept inspection. They based this on the belief that inspection by foreigners authorized to go anywhere at any time would be a challenge to the supremacy of the state and therefore contrary to the supremacy of the secret police, the NKVD, who dominate so many aspects of Russian life.

—PROPOSAL BEING STUDIED—
That is one reason why the Molotov proposal, for two inspection commissions, is being so closely examined. Those who know the Soviet system from first-hand experience find it hard to believe that the Russians will really accept inspection with all that it means.

Nevertheless, by their acceptance in principle they have put themselves in a strong position. What this new move has done is to crystallize once again opinion on the issue of the veto.

Molotov had said that the two inspection commissions would be set up within the framework of the United Nations Security Council. Presumably, therefore, the work of the inspectors would be subject to the big power veto just as the acts of the Security Council are subject to veto.

This was the question that the British promptly raised through Sir Bartley Shawcross. Sir Bartley used strong language. He spoke of the Molotov "scheme" as "a fraud, a delusion and a snare."

But that is too hasty a judgment. The Russian proposal should be fully explored before it is rejected out of hand. Since it seems to go such a long way, it should be taken as something to build on.

It gets down to a question of the reality of the veto in this connection. Any nation that proposed to veto the work of an inspection commission, once it was set up, would thereby almost automatically plead guilty to a violation, or an intended violation, of the rules the commission was trying to enforce. It would be equivalent to declaring an armament race or even to a declaration of war.

That is the reality of the veto in this instance, it seems to me. Take a theoretical example. Supposing the two inspection commissions were functioning today, one for atomic energy and the other for all forms of armament. Let's say, for the purposes of the example, that the United States used its veto to keep international inspectors out of the army's rocket-proving grounds in New Mexico.

—RUSSIA STANDS TO GAIN—
Would Great Britain and Russia need any other notice that we were perfecting in New Mexico some weapon we intended to withhold from the world? Obviously not! That is why, it seems to me, the reality of the veto in this instance has been greatly exaggerated in the course of a theoretical debate which is likely to prove a dead end.

International inspection implies overwhelming changes in the nature of our world. In many ways, Russia has far more to gain from such a system than we have. It means internationalizing the vast body of knowledge that this country has accumulated. Few have realized how advanced the American position is.

Nor is it generally known that Bernard M. Baruch, head of the U. S. Atomic Energy delegation, wanted to include in his speech of last June a proposal for general disarmament. He was asked not to include such a proposal because Senator Connally had disarmament plans of his own that he wanted to present later on.

Baruch in his speech of June 14 did put in a reference to the need for overall disarmament. But the way was left open for Molotov to propose universal disarmament. Being good strategists, the Russians rarely miss such an opportunity.

All of the time that the public debate goes on, the scientists and technologists are at work in the laboratories of the world. There is a kind of compulsion which drives them on to ever new discoveries. The value of the hands in the United Nations poker game are subject to sudden and unexpected changes.

the physician after the leech is uncertain. At any rate, in Wycliff's translation of the Bible (about 1332) the first complete translation of the Vulgate into English, Luke iv, 23 reads: "Leech, heal thyself," instead of (Authorized Version): "Physician, heal thyself."

Add unusual names. Mrs. M. E. of Savannah (she is now 85), writes: "When I was a child in Michigan I knew an Indian named Halfaday Holliday, and Able Workman was a neighbor of ours." M. G. F., of Bellaire, Ohio, used to teach school. These were some of her pupils: Ima Remnant; Nile Green; Ellabee Good; Roy Scarfing.

Bennettsville, S. C.: Please give the meaning of the name Suzanne. It means very much to me.—Mrs. E. G.

A. Suzanne is a variant form of Susanna, which is from the Hebrew shoshannah, "a lily." Other spellings of the name are: Susanne, Susannah, Susan.

Q. How did the Eskimos get their name?

A. The name evolved thus: Cree word askimewew, "he eats it raw," Abnaki word esquimantise, "eaters of raw flesh," French Esquimaux, Danish and English Eskimo.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—The Truman administration's dilly-dallying over conversion of the Big Inch and Little Inch pipelines to natural gas is exactly like Herbert Hoover's handling of the bonus army. It all boils down to the problem of looking ahead (some people call it statesmanship).

When veterans began straggling into Washington in the summer of 1932, Hoover did nothing about them. Soon he woke up to find about 20,000 veterans literally camped on the Nation's doorstep, finally had to resort to bayonets, tanks and Gen. Douglas MacArthur to run them out of town.

When Roosevelt came along later, veterans still continued to enter Washington. However, Roosevelt handled them as a day-to-day problem, didn't let them accumulate. Each day they were taken down to Fort Hunt, Va., just south of the Capitol, then helped to get back to their homes or places where jobs were available.

Likewise with the government's pipelines. Four years ago, when they were first built, it was well known that John L. Lewis was worried over the possibility that they might be converted to natural gas after the war. This column reported the fact at the time.

Repeatedly since the end of the war this column has pointed to the fact that cheap natural gas brought to the east in the now idle pipelines is one important answer to the annual danger of having John L. Lewis shut the coal industry down on a shivering nation.

However, more than a year has dragged by with nothing happening. Today, the pipelines could be converted to natural gas in about 13 days, provided the gas was hooked into one of the private pipelines supplying Ohio and the Detroit area. To get clearance of the right of way through Pennsylvania would take longer. But no clearances are necessary to supply Ohio and Michigan.

This quick emergency hook-up would supply only 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. Had the Truman administration looked ahead and exercised a little statesmanship, a permanent hook-up for gas—which takes much longer—could be in operation by this time and would pump 300,000,000 cubic feet daily into the industrial areas of the east.

—PICKETING J. L. LEWIS?—
Here is a letter from an organizer of the United Mine Workers regarding the poor wage scale paid by John L. Lewis to his own union workers. For obvious reasons, the writer of the letter, who works for Lewis's District 50, must remain anonymous. He writes:

"It is of great interest to see John L. Lewis again make wage demands of the operators, when the irony is that he does not believe in handing out increases to his own employees. The organizers of District 50 have not received an increase, in most cases since 1942.

"They have received $208 per month and $5 a day for expenses. In fact, they have been cut. They used to get parking and tolls, but now that has been removed from them. Yet without flinching his eyebrows, Lewis asks for wage increases from employers, forgetting that he, himself, is an employer.

"There is absolutely no seniority in District 50. The organization certainly needs a union more than the workers in plants to protect them from John L. Lewis. If anything goes wrong or a mistake is made, you get bawled out or fired without any recourse whatsoever.

"We in the locals introduced resolutions at the convention in Atlantic City, and what happened? The officers pigeon-holed them. Someday members of District 50 will have to resort to picketing."

—SHALL WE FEED GERMANY?—

The National Advisory committee, which develops U. S. economy foreign policy, had a surprise guest speaker the other day—Under Secretary of Agriculture N. E. Dodd. Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles had invited him to describe the European agricultural situation and Dodd began by telling how "shocked" he was at the possibility Germany would go hungry this winter.

"Things are terrible in Germany," Dodd said, and then went on to state that Germany is the only country in Europe which will be hungry.

His remarks were a surprise to Under Secretary of State Will Clayton, who pointed out that this did not correspond with the facts received by the state department, which indicated that starvation in Greece, Italy and Czechoslovakia this winter will be as great, if not greater, than last year.

"I am sorry," Clayton added, "there just isn't enough food in the world to go around."

"There's more food than we thought," Dodd replied.

At this point, Dodd's sponsor at the meeting, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Eccles, interrupted.

"If we don't feed the Germans," he said, "then the Russians will. Besides we ought to stop sending food to countries in the Soviet zone."

The debate continued, but no decision was taken on stepping up food shipments to Germany.

NOTE—For five years, while the rest of the continent starved, the Germans ate off the fat of the land. As a result of malnutrition in non-German areas, Hitler won at least one aspect of the war, for he wrecked Europe's health.

"Hunters Hit by Shell Shortage"—headline. And, judging from reports, that isn't all.

If your children can look up to you, you've made a success of your biggest job in life.

A tip on wintertime driving: it's better to drive slowly than be driven that way.

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

FOR FARM WIVES—In a recent column there was presented a letter written by Mrs. Ben Davis of Manistique, who commented on the apparent inability of the farm wife to obtain either nylons or soap in city shops. It was pointed out by the Bugler that shop proprietors have more than a passing interest in the farm trade, and that it is always best for business men to give people from the country the same consideration they give their city customers.

This week there is one of several letters received on the same subject which we have decided to publish. It is a reasonable letter, it sticks to the point in question, and it is from Mrs. G. H. Taylor of Cornell.

HER PET PEEVE—Mrs. Taylor writes: "As I read the letter from Mrs. Davis it struck a responsive chord in my heart. In fact, this subject has long been my 'pet peeve'."

"After being at the farm for a couple of weeks we felt the need of supplies. We drove to Escanaba and entered a certain grocery store. After buying all our groceries, including our Thanksgiving needs, we parted with several dollars. We then went to the house of a friend in town for lunch, and our hostess remarked about all the soap they had at a certain store the night before—told us a galore if you can pay the price, she said—washing powder, etc."

"That reminded me that I needed soap to do our washing, and so we drove back across the town to the store with the bountiful supply on hand. I waited in the car while my husband went in. He came out empty handed—no soap. Well, I said, I will go to the store where we bought our groceries and perhaps I can get some there. But the young lady who waited on us told me that the store hadn't had soap of any kind for three weeks. She seemed very much surprised that I would even ask for soap, but I had been in the country for two weeks and how could I know they didn't have soap unless I ask?"

AND THE SELLING—Mrs. Taylor's letter continues: "This is just an example of several experiences we have in trading in town."

"One of them is the price the farmer gets for what he has to sell. If we go into town with a few dozen eggs to sell, we look at the price of eggs on sale, then when they pay us for ours—there is a difference of 11 or 12 cents!

"It keeps us busy to even break even, between the cost of feed and what we get for eggs. Why then, when the profit is 11 or 12 cents per dozen? Especially when he makes a profit on everything we buy also."

"Of course, I realize he should have some profit for handling, but how satisfied we would be to make a profit of 11 or 12 cents per dozen without any profit of a grocery sale on top of that."

"There, that's out of my system, and perhaps next time I see the slogan 'The Farmer Feeds the World' I can say—and with what little thanks."

THE ANSWER—So ends Mrs. Taylor's letter, and we will attempt to answer it as best we can—for we believe that if Escanaba is to preserve its title of "shopping center of the Upper Penin-

MILL AT NADEAU CHANGES HANDS

Arthur Jean Disposes Of Millwork Plant To Chicago Firm

Sale of the Jean Millwork factory, at Nadeau, manufacturers of doors, sashes, window frames, furniture and other wood-products, to the Joyce Manufacturing company, 5407 North Christiana avenue, Chicago, effective immediately, was announced by Norman LaFave, of the Northland Property Sales, Iron Mountain, through which the deal was completed. The figure was not disclosed.

Started some 40 years ago, and operated continuously since that time, the Jean Millwork company has been a principal activity at Nadeau, employing skilled and unskilled labor. Negotiations for its sale were conducted with Arthur Jean, proprietor, for the company, and George Simler, Chicago, for the Joyce firm.

Harry J. Citron is president of the Joyce company.

Work of remodeling the factory, to permit expansion, has been started and when again operated at capacity, about 50 men will be employed, it was brought out. All of the lumber used in the work will be bought from Upper Michigan mills, Citron said.

Jean will hereafter devote most of his time to operation of his sawmill, near Stephenson, where he has a crew cutting timber and preparing lumber for the market.

"We believe this is a significant development for Upper Michigan," LaFave, who brought the two agencies together, said here. "It is another indication that there have been many, recently—of the trend, by outside interests, towards the smaller communities of this area, and we feel it is a healthy sign for the future."

"The Joyce Manufacturing company expects to develop a full line of products heretofore offered by the Jean factory at Nadeau, and to add other items to the list as new equipment is obtained, and men are trained for the work."

Creameries Plan Better Butter At Lower Price

Chicago—Butter is going to try to battle its way back into popular esteem.

Right now, it's in the doghouse, say butter makers.

A mournful picture of that doghouse is painted by the president of the American Butter Institute, D. K. Howe, who is also executive vice president of the Fairmont Creamery Co., Omaha:

"Production is way below normal, the price is high, and consumption is off," says he. "People have become used to making a little butter go a long way, or to doing without. New formulas have been developed for baking with other fats instead of butter."

And to top it off, butter's arch-enemy, margarine, may hit output of 550 million pounds this year, compared with some 350 million pounds in pre-war years.

Strategy: Lower Price, Higher Quality

Ways to elevate butter to its former glory, and even to lift it to new heights, were discussed at the 38th annual meeting of the Butter Institute, which ended here yesterday.

Interviews with many of the 500 butter men who attended the meeting, as well as formal convention speeches, indicate the industry will try to get back in the good graces of the public through this strategy: Lower prices; a higher quality product.

Butter makers blame OPA for most of butter's current troubles. During the war, OPA set dairy prices so butter was the least profitable milk product to make.

One expert explains a dairy could give a farmer $1 (in terms of butterfat content) for milk destined to go into ice cream; 75 cents if it went into cheese, but only 55 cents if it were destined for butter.

So butter production steadily declined. By last June, output had hit the lowest level on record. It was at an annual rate of less than 1 billion pounds and some 30% under a year earlier. Before the war, in 1940, butter production was 1.8 billion pounds. Production has been rising since it was freed from price control June 30. It got up to the 1945 level in August and is now about 16% above a year ago.

Prices Point Downward

Butter men aren't any happier about high prices than the public is. Without exception, they think prices are coming down.

"Just look at the futures market," one butter man said. He pointed out butter for June delivery is quoted at 53 cents compared with 80 cents for immediate delivery.

"We don't want a pound of butter in inventory at these prices," an official of another large producing company said. "We're selling it just as fast as it comes out of the churn."

The result of this no-inventory policy among leading producers is unprecedented price gyrations. In a normal market, butter seldom fluctuates more than 1/8- or 1/4-cent daily. Now changes are 3 to 5 cents a day. Butter men don't look for stable prices until cold storage stocks get back to normal.

Mr. Lewis Is a Factor

John L. Lewis is going to help pull butter prices down, an official from a large Chicago dairy firm said. If the coal strike cuts national income, he explained, this will mean reduced demand for dairy products. When this happens, excess milk will go into butter.

The butter industry isn't relying just on economic forces to pull prices down. It is undertaking a campaign to get more farmers to separate their cream mechanically. A new sound slide film on this subject will be ready for farmer audiences by January. Hand skimming, say Ray Alberts, field director for the Institute, results in a butterfat loss of 10% to 33%. A water dilution method wastes 15% to 28%, but the loss is only 10.6% which mechanical separators are used.

Another way butter firms are working toward helping farmers reduce their costs, which ultimately means lower prices for consumers, is by suggesting things that will make "old Bossy" give more milk.

At 4-H club meetings and other farm gatherings, members of the Institute are encouraging farmers to turn to better feed, improved seed practices and more careful seed selection. And artificial insemination is urged to create better bossies. More production per cow means lower cost to the farmer.

Machines Will Cut Costs

Lower costs in creameries are in prospect when newly developed types of butter-making machines are placed on the market. Now butter is made by the "batch" process—producing one churnful at a time. Both Creamery Package Manufacturing Co. and Cherry-Burrell Corp., two of the leading producers of creamery equipment, are developing continuous-process butter-making machines, to turn out a constant stream of butter. These new machines show promise of tripling output per man-hour in making butter. An added advantage is that the resulting butter should be of more uniform quality. Making butter by existing methods is something of an art—it requires a lot of skill and experience. The new machines, producing better butter with less experienced help, may cut production costs as much

Sigler Climbs From Nebraska Cowboy To Michigan's Governor

By ROBERTA APPLIGATE

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—A spectacular career as Michigan's graft prosecutor swept Republican Kim Sigler into the governor's office with the largest majority any Michigan gubernatorial candidate has received since 1928.

A former Nebraska cowboy, rancher and professional boxer, Sigler stepped from private law practice into immediate statewide prominence late in 1943. He became special prosecutor for a one-man grand jury investigating charges of graft in state government, especially in the legislature.

The governor-elect has almost no previous experience as a public official. Twenty years ago he was elected county prosecutor in western Michigan's Barry county as a Democrat. That campaign, he says, was sparked by a combination of "Democrats and Republicans who wanted to get rid of a corrupt prosecutor." In 1942, as a Republican, he made an unsuccessful race for the state senate.

As special prosecutor, Sigler convicted 41 men, obtained 12 pleas of guilty, drew seven acquittals and was plunged into the investigation of the still-unsolved murder of a state senator. Sigler said he was "shot because he had talked too much to the grand jury."

Sigler, 52, jumped into the governor's race last spring after he was ousted as special prosecutor in a policy disagreement with the grand juror, Judge Louis E. Coash, and after a critical report by a senate committee.

Silver-haired, steely-eyed and rugged featured, Sigler has an extensive, somewhat flashy wardrobe and a fiery courtroom manner which won him the title of "Hollywood Kim" before he started his prosecutions. The title was forgotten, however, with his first successes. He became known instead as a hard fighter and a hard worker.

He stumped every county in Michigan, speaking always without notes—promising clean government, and at times blasting communism. He also flew airplanes, rode horses at fairs, judged weights and sang cowboy songs.

Sigler is a graduate of the University of Detroit Law School. He worked at the Ford Motor Company to earn money for his education. He is a former district governor of Rotary International and a commissioner-at-large of the State Bar of Michigan. He is married, has two daughters and a grandson.

Sigler is the second Michigan man in recent years to rise to high office from graft grand jury work. Judge Homer Ferguson was elected United States Senator in 1942 after he conducted a grand jury which sent high Detroit officials, including the mayor, to prison for bribe conspiracies.

THREE COURT CASES HEARD

Four Are Placed On Probation—One Is Sent To Pen

Three criminal court actions, involving five Schoolcraft county men, were considered by Judge Herbert W. Runnels in a special term of Schoolcraft county circuit court at Sault Ste. Marie on Monday.

Three youths, Gerald Tuftell, 18, Richard Weber, 20, and Vernon Edwards, 19, pleaded guilty as charged to the theft of a dozen hunting knives from Herbert Peterson of Marquette. The knives were merchandise which Peterson had stored in his car which was parked on lots back of Hotel Ossa. The theft occurred on Nov. 16. Judge Runnels placed the youths on probation.

Albert Gage, appearing before Judge Runnels from local district court on a charge of being a habitually disorderly person, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve two years in the Marquette prison. His repeated appearance before Judge Stephens on drunk and disorderly charges led to his ultimate appearance in circuit court on a habitual charge.

Henry Polhamus, of Germfask, charged with vending in this area a concoction known as "Anti-Duck," which according to the chemical division of the state police department contained phenobarbital, a narcotic drug, appeared before Judge Runnels for a hearing. The judge, however, continued the case until the regular term of circuit court in January.

Bishop H. Paige
Spoke At Elks
Memorial Rites

A plea for a better appreciation of our friends while they are yet among us was voiced by the Rev. Bishop Herman Paige of Marquette at memorial services at the Elks lodge room last Sunday.

The Bishop praised the custom of the lodge of holding these services annually to recall the good deeds done by those who have gone on before. He added that we can best honor these people by bestowing kindness and friendship upon those who were near and dear to them.

Clinton Leonard delivered a short eulogy in appreciation of Dave A. Yalomstein, long a member of the local Elks lodge, who passed away a few weeks ago.

The services were enhanced by several musical numbers by the following women: Mrs. O. J. Schuster, Mrs. Scott Creighton, Mrs. Carl Wedell, Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Elwood Taylor and Mrs. A. F. Hall.

The rites were favored with a good attendance.

Kansas City Colored Team Plays At Bonifas Gym Tonight

PICKED LOCAL QUINT IS FOE

One-Armed Player Stars With Travelling Aggregation

Basketball fans attending the Kansas City Stars-Escanaba All Stars basketball clash at the Bonifas gymnasium tonight will see one of the nation's top basketball travelling teams in action, including the only one-armed basketball player to make the grade in the professional game. He is Bold Bule, a recent graduate of Tennessee State College (colored) who scored 289 points last season.

The colored team is a companion quintet to the Harlem Globe Trotters, well known to local basketball fans, and several of the players now with the Kansas City team formerly were in the lineup of the Globe Trotters.

Net proceeds from the game tonight will be used to promote the city basketball league, which opens its schedule next week.

In a preliminary game at 7:30 o'clock, Oberg's will play Mike's Bar. The feature game is scheduled for 8:45 o'clock.

Playing with the travelling colored team are Charlie Young, center, and Piper Davis, guard, both formerly with the Harlem Globe Trotters; Willie Malone, guard, who starred at Langston University for four years; John Smith, forward, a teammate of Malone's at Langston; and Bule, the one armed guard.

Bule is 6 ft., 1½ inches tall and despite the handicap of playing with only one arm, he is an excellent shot as his scoring record of 289 points in a single season proves.

Playing with the Escanaba all star team, picked from the city league, will be Gauthier, Anderson, Johnson and Ranguette of Swift's, Paine and Young of Gladstone Lions, Wes Hanson of O'Berger's, O'Donnell of Mike's Bar and Kessler of the Escanaba VFW.

Ray Ranguette and Dick Schram will officiate.

The 1945-46 Eskymos basketball team, which won 17 of its 18 games and captured the Upper Peninsula Class B championship, set a new scoring record at the local high school. The team scored a total of 696 points in 18 games, an average of 38 2/3 points per game while their opponents scored 516 points, an average of 28 2/3 points. This record is not likely to be challenged by the present EHS team but the record, imposing as it is, will not stand indefinitely. ### Hilkene Is Chosen Michigan Football Captain For 1947

Ann Arbor, Dec. 3 (AP)—Bruce Hilkene, whose term to lead the 1945 gridiron squad was ended by a navy transfer before it could begin, today was the choice of his teammates to captain the 1947 University of Michigan football outfit.

The 193-pound tackle who prepped at Indianapolis, Ind., Shortridge high school, played for the Wolverines in the 1943 and 1945 seasons and was elected to lead the squad in 1945, but a navy transfer took him from the Michigan campus.

He returned this fall and was converted from end to tackle when Coach Fritz Crisler found he lacked veteran material for the tackle posts. Against Illinois he broke into the starting column by blocking Dike Eddleman's end zone punt for a safety.

Tailback Bob Chappuis, 180-pound running and passing star who spearheaded the Wolverine offense, was named the most valuable player of the 1946 season.

The former Air Forces gunner, who was trapped three months behind the German lines in Italy, set a Western Conference record by averaging 148.1 yards per game as a ball carrier and passer after his return to the gridiron.

Chappuis personally accounted for four of Michigan's touchdowns as a runner and hurled the passes that netted five others. He also set up a number of touchdown plays.

Bark River-Harris Nips Daggett, 49-16

In a league game played at Bark River-Harris high school basketball team defeated Daggett, 49 to 16. The Bark River-Harris reserves won a preliminary over the Daggett reserves, 35 and 29. L. Ranguette of Fayette refereed.

Experts Pick Irish Over Army In Last Grid Poll Of 1946

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

New York, Dec. 3 (AP)—Turning their backs on Army for the first time in three years, sports writers across the nation picked Notre Dame today as the outstanding college football team of 1946.

Army's narrow squeak against Navy last Saturday while Notre Dame was mastering Southern California contributed heavily to the final decision of 184 experts who participated in the Associated Press' last poll of the year, making the vote the heaviest in the history of the weekly balloting.

It ended the long reign of the Cadets who finished on top in both 1944 and 1945.

Texas started off in first place this year, but Army took over the following week and held the top spot until today, with Notre Dame always a close second.

The Irish, who played a scoreless tie with Army this season to put the only blot on Army's three-year record covering 28 games, compiled 1,730½ points in the final ballot to Army's 1,659½ on the usual basis of ten points for a first-place vote, nine for second, and so on.

But exactly 100 of the writers named Notre Dame as the No. 1 team, while Army drew 48 first-place votes. Nine experts called it a tie between the two.

Illinois, with a record of seven victories and two defeats, was picked as the No. 5 team, followed by Michigan.

Seven of the top ten teams will appear in major bowl games on New Year's day. It will be UCLA vs. Illinois in the Rose Bowl, Georgia vs. North Carolina in the Sugar Bowl, Tennessee vs. Rice in the Orange Bowl and Louisiana State vs. Arkansas, which finished in 16th place, in the Cotton Bowl.

The final standings (based on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 system of scoring with season won-lost-tied records in parentheses):

Sugar w/rl, Tennessee vs. Rice in the Orange Bowl and Louisiana State vs. Arkansas, which finished in 16th place, in the Cotton Bowl.

Fistic Dictator Jacobs Collapses With Stroke; Condition Is Critical

New York, Dec. 3 (AP)—Michael Straus Jacobs, who mushroomed two free tickets to a neighborhood boxing match into a million-dollar business, collapsed in a Broadway office today and was taken to St. Clair hospital where his condition was reported critical.

The 66-year-old promotional dictator of the fistic industry suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, his physician, Dr. Vincent Nardiello, said, adding that his condition would remain critical for at least 48 hours.

Dr. Nardiello said Jacobs had been suffering from a severe cold for three weeks and was on a visit to a chiropractor in the Capitol theater building this afternoon when he was stricken.

Dr. Nardiello, who is also physician for Jacobs' Twentieth Century Sporting Club—the headquarters of the promoter's business enterprises—said he had called Dr. Peter Croce of the hospital staff into a consultation.

At 8 p. m. (CST) Dr. Nardiello said Jacobs' condition was "very much the same" but that the stricken man's blood pressure had "come down considerably," which he regarded as a good sign.

"However, he is very seriously ill and remains in a semi-comatose condition," the doctor added.

Born March 10, 1880 in lower New York City, the third of nine children of a tailor, Jacobs hawked newspapers to help add to the family income. He had to leave school after the sixth grade and his promotional career started soon afterward.

While he was peddling sandwiches in Tammany hall, a newspaper circulation manager gave him two free tickets to a boxing match. An acquaintance offered $2 for the tickets and Mike, somewhat amazed, sold them promptly.

That transaction gave him the germ of an idea which resulted eventually in bringing him sports fame and fortune. He built up one of the largest ticket brokerage businesses in the city.

Although he did not dominate the fight game as a promoter until 1935, he was a familiar figure to "insiders" of the sport for two decades before that.

After the death of Tex Richard Jacobs began to emerge as a promoter of milk fund and Christ-mas funds bouts in New York. Soon thereafter he organized the Twentieth Century Club.

When Joe Louis' star began to appear on the horizon the shrewd Jacobs signed him for his exclusive services. As Louis' prestige grew knockout by knockout, Mike made money in proportion.

After an historic legal battle with the management of Madison Square Garden, Jacobs was called in to take over the promotion of Garden fights. By 1941 he controlled all the fistic titles from heavyweight down to the lightweight divisions.

WINTER SPORTS PLANS STUDIED

Theloir Speaks At Banquet Meeting Here Tuesday

The value of winter sports in a community was outlined by Wilber Theloir, of Ishpeming, in an address to a banquet meeting last evening in the marine room at the House of Ludington.

Theloir declared that the winter sports activities are designed primarily to provide entertainment and healthful recreation for local residents. The appeal to outsiders and the business that winter sports bring to a community is considerable, the speaker said, but it is secondary in importance. Specifically, winter sports help to make a better community, Theloir emphasized.

The Ishpeming man, who has been a key figure in the development of the winter sports program in Marquette county and particularly in the promotion of the ski jumping championships, pointed to the progress made in Escanaba in speed skating and figure skating and in the leadership of this community in these winter events.

The speaker urged that a survey be made of the terrain surrounding Escanaba with the thought in mind of selecting the most suitable area for broadening the skiing program for maximum enjoyment of the greatest number of local ski fans.

In conclusion, Theloir pledged the cooperation of the Ishpeming Winter Sports club to the Escanaba group in developing and promoting the local program.

George Grenholm, president of the U. P. Winter Sports council, told of the plans for unification of winter sports throughout the peninsula, stressing the possibility of securing the 1953 winter Olympics for the area north of the straits in Michigan.

Plans for the Queen of the North contest, the annual figure skating revue and the speed skating championships in Escanaba were reported by James Frenn, Howard Dufour, Art Goulaie, George Grenholm and Gene Herbert.

L. BASIL FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Believe North Western Boilermaker Died Last Week

The body of Louis Basil, age about 58, a boilermaker employed most of his life by the North Western railroad, was found on the floor in the bedroom of his residence at 400 South 16th street yesterday afternoon by Escanaba police, who said the man may have been dead since Thanksgiving Day.

Along with the body was Basil's wife, described by police as suffering from a mental ailment for which she had received treatment at the state hospital in Newberry. She was taken to the county jail for care last night.

Police discovered the body when they went to the house at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to serve a legal paper. The officer found the house filled with smoke from the furnace after Mrs. Basil had attempted to start a fire.

It was reported by police that the house was cold, and that Basil's body was frozen. They said the woman told them that her husband had been "sleeping" on the floor since Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28.

Basil last worked at his job as a boilermaker Saturday, Nov. 23.

The body was removed to the Anderson Funeral Home, following an investigation by police and Coroner Kevill Murphy. A post mortem examination will be made this morning to determine the cause of death, and if necessary an inquest will be held. Police said last night that Basil was known to have suffered from high blood pressure.

Born in Escanaba, Basil is survived by his wife, and one brother, John, of Toledo, O. Basil was employed by the North Western railroad prior to 1914, and then returned there that year to continue his job as boilermaker helper apprentice. He had been a boilermaker since 1926.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Delta Unemployed Decline Slightly

The number of Delta county's unemployed declined slightly during the month of November, with 797 persons throughout the county seeking work, James M. Damitz, local MSES office manager, announced yesterday. Of this total, 623 were veterans and 74 were women; 198 persons, 136 of whom were veterans, were referred from the office to discuss job opportunities with local employers, which resulted in 90 placements, 65 of whom were veterans. At the close of November, there were 59 unfilled openings, 40 of these being in the woods industry. Because of the distance involved in traveling to and from work, these openings remain difficult to fill.

Many veterans and other construction workers have evinced a keen interest in overseas employment, or in jobs downstate and other areas. The skill level demanded for overseas employment is very high, although there are some openings for semi-skilled workers. With the advent of the P&H company into Escanaba, it is expected that much of the available labor supply will be absorbed.

Soon to be shown in the local theatres is the American Legion film, "No Help Wanted," which depicts the story of the physically handicapped veteran of World War II on the road back to his place in business and in industry.

Makes Flying Field Near Hunting Camp

Iron Mountain—Don Frickelton, of the "flying" Frickeltons, this year combined his knowledge of flying with his prowess as a deer hunter and came up with a neat arrangement in the form of a landing field beside his hunting camp, which is the envy of scores of hunters who made their way in and out of the same hunting grounds on foot.

Frickelton, who holds a commercial pilot's license built "Camp No-Go" about 12 years ago and then had the experience of numerous hunting camp owners—he found it was inaccessible during certain periods of the year. When the roads were open and not blocked with snow, the drive from Iron Mountain to the camp required about an hour's time.

Deciding that he had enough of traveling to camp by car, Frickelton hired a bulldozer and cut a landing strip 1,200 feet long right at his front door. Planes equipped with regulation landing gear now can reach the camp about nine months out of the year and, when equipped with "skis," can make the trip even during the heaviest snows.
